The commons room t.v. whines far into the night. On the screen, a woman holds out a blue box full of something useless and unwanted. "It's late, man. Much too late." The weary Sixth Former reaches out, snaps off the television. The woman fades, still smiling, still convinced that she and she alone holds the secret to the salvation of all those lonely housewives condemned to daily drudgery. "Time to go to bed."

In the darkness, foot meets footlocker. There is a brief cry of pain, animal, wanton, a cry from the heart, a curse not often heard outside the confines of a boys' private school. The Sixth Former hops awkwardly, one footed, across the room to land in heaven, nirvana, bliss — his bed. As hard, lumpy, and uncomfortable as it may be, The Hill School bed is to a Sixth Former as food and drink are to most men. And if the bed is his steak, then sleep, the common little-death, is his equivalent of the finest ale to complement it.

But even in his sleep, there is still The Hill School, hanging like the faint smell of burnt toast in the air. It hovers over the sleeper, inescapable, engraved in every dream's locale, in the faces of the dream characters, in the mind of the dreamer himself. Classmates float by in the dream, subtly changed and unrecognizable, but breathing the unmistakable odor of the School; a nightmare rises winged into the night, dressed in black academic robes, screaming the scream of a thousand outraged Dr. Iorillos. In deep slumber, the body is near death, as near death as a living man can be: heartbeat slows, breathing becomes stertorous, the eyes roll back in the head, twitching. The mind of the Sixth Former is still very much alive, living the day again, meeting the denizens of the School, its horrors, its triumphs, its defeats.

Like Cervantes of old, let us enter such a mind (Come, venture into my imagination. I shall impersonate . . . a man), the mind of the sleeping Sixth Former. Let us roam in this untamed and often desolate land and see what the unconscious mind, the subconscious mind, reveals.

A car door slams, a startling sound, the clap of doom. The sky seems an unusual color, a color to which the Sixth Former, again a new boy in his dream, will soon become used: Pottstown grey, the grey of Hill jerseys and Wood's roast beef. The father, surprisingly large (The senior forgets how much he has grown in the intervening years), says, heartily, "Well, son, we're here."

Once again the Sixth Former is new to the school, a Second Former, ridiculously small in an ill-fitting Brooks Brothers double-breasted jacket and unfamiliar tie. Once again he faces the terror and sadness of being new, the feeling of being odd man out, alone in an unknown world. He faces his five-year term as a student at the place known as The Hill.

Dad, who is uncomfortable with the scene (He came here himself, and it is strange turning his son over to the old remembered faces and names of Mercer, Revell, Eddy, Senter, et al. It is not entirely pleasant to cut ties this way either, but it is, after all, what is best for you kid), soon convinces an unsure and slightly clinging Mom that everything is all right, that it is time to leave. They are gone, and it is left to the student to deal with The Hill, whether it be nightmare or fantasy come true.

The first days are the most difficult: early rising, a strange room and a strange roommate, relentless prefects, a seldom-seen hallmaster. The frequent collect calls home only serve to make the unfamiliarity seem more menacing. But even as the tears flow at night and fear crouches in classrooms in the day, the dream sees the new boy transformed. He notices comforting fact: everybody, it seems, is as unsure and unfamiliar as he is. It is a comradeship formed by fear under fire, to be sure. But it is a comradeship, nonetheless, and that is important. As the fear lessens, as his class finds its "Hill School Cool", he discovers that much of that camaraderie remains. He has friends.

It is, in this first year, that early friendship which makes all the difference. He finds Grill-companions, soccer-buddies, and tennis-partners. He finds people to compare notes with; he eventually finds a roommate for — surprise! — a second year at The Hill. In nine months' time, a very different form of gestation but no less developmental than that first long ago, fear has been worn away by the now constant touch of familiarity. The dining hall is no more frightening than the kitchen back home (just the food is); wombats are a common sight; wedgies no longer hold their former terror. Exams, some two and three hours long, were a new thing last November; they are old hat in May.

Graduation through a Second Former's eyes is a distant and unattainable thing. He sees his prefects and cheers for them. The rest are a white-legged, blue-coated mass, unknown and uninteresting. Then the senior class is gone. The entire School takes a giant step forward in the unending process of evolution, and the Second Former gasps to find that he is now (roll of drums) an old boy, the staple and spine of the Hill School student body.

Summer passes quickly. The dream changes. The Sixth Former, lying in his bed in the darkness, stirs, near waking. Perhaps he mumbles a word or two. "Want a donut?" vaguely heard. His roommate stirs. "Flush and brush." Then he subsides once again into deep, dream-filled sleep.

In the changed dream, the Sixth Former finds himself a Third Former, an inhabitant of Foster Penitentiary. Walt Sandulli and Graydon Dodson patrol the halls. All is deafeningly quiet, as conditions always are on 2 Foster West. It is a Saturday.

The dream is short, but all encompassing. There are classes, four of them today: Ancient History, English 1, Biology, and Alegbra. No Latin, the second year, on Saturdays. Classes are easy, shorter than normal, taken with the practiced ease of the second-year-man. He has learned ways of getting around busywork and many of the Monarch notes. Don't bother to read the history. Never look Dr. Iorillo in the face unless you absolutely, positively know the answer. But don't bury your head in your book if you don't know it. Look nonchalant. In point of fact, this is the first order of business with third formers: affecting nonchalance. They attempt to be breezy with each other, with upper-classmen, with girls at dances, and with faculty members. It is their weapon and their defense.

After classes, the dream slows stupefyingly. It is winter, too cold to go outside. There is no dance, and the movie is bad. Until eleven o'clock, the boredom continues. Then there are lights-out and sleep. But if the Third Form lacks excitement, at least the Second Form all-pervading fear is gone. And graduation is one year closer.

Again the dream shifts, in both its locale and its character. Middle School looms like a great, crumbling cliff. The Fourth Former, now a very old boy indeed, feels that at last he belongs to the school. At last he has come into his own. At last his voice will be heard. It seems that, with the passing of Third Form and its immaturity, things have really changed.

The Fourth Former is right. Things really have changed, but not exactly the way he thinks. This year he encounters his first term papers, his first need for late lights, and the first busts. Along with these signs of maturity comes a few privileges — 11 o'clock lights out (an extra half-hour), and a couple of others — but not many. It is another year before they lose their prefects or get Grill privileges. These are the things which separate men from boys at Hill.

The Fourth Former tends to take himself very seriously in the dream. He is on a definite upward swing. The quality of life has improved vastly from that of a Third Former. No longer are hallchecks such a big thing. Lights out on time means less and less as the year progresses.

The Fourth Former is a serious student and a serious athlete as well. For the first time he is in PA courses; for the first time he is a rising JV athlete, expecting a major H in two sports the next year. The purpose of the School is clear to the Fourth Former, as are his reasons for attending. Its education is having its desired effect. From a Second Form child, he has grown into a Fourth Form adolescent.

After a year of hard work and good sleep, the Fourth Former undergoes a change. As he surveys the snappy Sixth Form blazers striding into the hockey rink, he feels the first twinges of Fifth Form despair. "I've been through so much," he thinks, "but it's not my turn yet."

As the Fourth Former diligently takes his last exam, thinking proudly that he has only fifteen more to go, the dream changes again. The Sixth Former, still asleep in his room, struggles against the sheets and blankets which wrap around him, pinning his legs and arms, sweating from the profuse heat which pours out of the normally dormant radiators. Within his head, a quiet nightmare raises its head, eyes aglow, drooling and giggling madly. Where before it had only scraped the icy-cold claw of fear and loneliness over the boy's soul, or the red-hot tooth of inferiority, it now lands on the dream Fifth Former with all of its weapons drawn. The year which every Hill boy should dread is upon him.

The Fifth Form starts out quietly enough. With no prefects on the hall, and virtually no lights out (except for some poor individuals who get to sleep at eleven on Saturdays, because their Mom insisted, though even this is not without its compensations. Remember Momlettes?), the Fifth Form looks like a breeze, and a good time at that, too. The nightmare snickers at the innocence of the Fifth Formers, sharpening its horrible horns against his ignorance.

The Fifth Form, second most important class in the school. Brightest class (aw, this year's sixth form is a bunch of vegetables). Finally moving up to positions of power: squash captain, News editor, Dial editor, row captain. All goes well . . .

Until the work hits. The nightmare howls with laughter as someone stutters out the realization that the Fifth Form year is one that counts. People begin to sweat, understanding that they are in the process of making the records which the colleges will see. There is a mad rush to join clubs, to bring grades up, to make up for lost time on bolstering poor verbal power. Suddenly Math 3 looks like a good idea for next year, as does Etymology. People start edging closer to Mr. Smith, making friends, being sure that he knows who they are and what wonderful things they can do and what good colleges they would love to get into. College meeting announcements in the dining hall go from mere time-consumers to riveting bulletins. The three-hour Saturday tests start coming up once in a while, and "What's your selection index?" becomes an important question, though few understand what selection index is or how it's arrived at. No doubt Mr. Smith, the college advisor, will inform and enlighten them next year in Studies in Education, or Senior Education, or whatever it's called, or named. Meanwhile, it is enough to get the grades and test scores.

The process of learning — all interest in learning, in fact — is sacrificed to the all-important Grade. Before, a drop of a grade or two was just a problem, an unfortunate lapse. Now the Fifth Formers imagine severe selection committees at Mr. Gardner's Prestige U. frowning over such a drop and shaking their wise, gray heads sadly. "We'd love to admit you all," they say, "but . . ." Cramming becomes important; sleep becomes less available and more important, more troubled than before. The Hill gristmill begins to turn faster and faster, egged on by the blood that it smells so close, so very available. Mature young men break under the strain of trying to keep up a sport, grades, and all the extra-curricular activities for which they thought they never before had time. The necessity of such luxuries as class cuts and no "light-out" becomes blindingly clear. The clear-headedness and determination of the Fourth Former disappears in the chaos, washed into the wake of the dream by the furious activity of the Fifth Former. The reason for the School becomes obscured; the School itself and its continuous demands block the view.

Graduation is a horrifying and morbid event for the Fifth Former. In the blazers he can see himself, only a year in the future. In the mirror, he sees a wraith facing upcoming dissolution. "These are the most important exams of your Hill career," he is told. "They will also be by far the most difficult." All that he has heard about these exams is true: they are fiendish, the creation of the nightmare itself. The sleeping Sixth Former writhes at their memory.

Once again the dream changes: it is the senior year which seems not to be. Where are the blazers? Where are the pranks? Where are the holidays? College applications pile up, all clamoring for attention. Shall I apply to two schools, or three, or six, or go to forestry school? Shall I go early D or Early A or Rolling or Regular A . . . and at which colleges? What is a longshot? A backup? We know what that last word is, Roger, but what is the first? Studies? Studies in Education? Privileges? The spirits of late, great breakfast cuts of previous Sixth Formers come back to haunt him. Should he skip? He doesn't dare: Gordy and O have taken an algebra class, and the marks now pile up geometrically instead of linearly. What do you mean, six marks for missing breakfast? And there is always the threat of Saturday Night Detention, another of the Gruesome Twosome's inventions to keep us in line.

Then it is winter term. February 15 is past. It is all in the hands of God. A few slips arrive, saying that missing materials are needed; a couple of people on Rolling Admission and Early Decision get in. Their year is over. Then it is spring, a spring like any other at The Hill, but a spring like no other. It is the Sixth Form spring, time for suntans, weekends, frisbee games, and shoe golf. Idle threats about senior full periods, menacing words about the seniors' slide and withheld diplomas, all these fall on deaf ears. The sixth form knows the truth: its time at this place is almost over, and it will enjoy what is left. "Go for it!" rings wide throughout the campus.

The dream blurs and fades, becoming a shrill screaming, a bell, the rising bell. The Sixth Former groans and shakes his head, clearing it of the stuff of night. He has much to do. It is an important day.

And into the sun they walk, over a hundred and fifty of them, and into the hockey rink. Sitting in the straight-backed chairs, family and girlfriends behind them, the Sixth Formers of the Hill School, are very proud. They have withstood the tests and judgements of this place. They now reap the rewards.

And after his name is called, and after he has received his diploma, our dreamer returns to his seat, grinning. As he leaves the hockey rink, leaves the School, leaves The Hill and its faculty and staff and grounds and underformers and his friends, leaves them all behind, he surveys the world, which he has never beheld with such breathtaking clarity, beyond its walls. He looks at it, knowing that it is now his place to enter. And he stretches his arms over his head, yawns, feeling refreshed, and says, "What a long strange dream it's been!"

THE HILL SCHOOL
POTTSTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA
19464

To the Class of 1982:

Every class has characteristics by which it is especially remembered. The Class of 1982 has been distinguished not only by an unprecedented academic excellence but also by its generosity of service to the School. Through your outstanding accomplishments, your superior musical and dramatic productions, and your noteworthy literary publications, you have fully given yourselves, both as individuals and as groups, to the life of The Hill. For that I thank you.

What pleases me is that all that you have done for your School was carried out in an atmosphere of selflessness and a spirit of sharing. Your generation has been accused of personal aggressiveness, selfishness, and egocentricity, but I have found little of those qualities in you. To the contrary, each of you on countless occasions has reached out your hand to praise a classmate or to encourage him. In so doing, you then collectively promoted the cooperation and friendliness that are vital to the well-being of The Hill.

My plea to you, therefore, is that during your college years and later, you do not lose these admirable assets that you now possess. To retain them will be a constant struggle for you, for the demands and challenges ahead of you can easily destroy your sense of compassion, humility, and tolerance.

Watch ye, then, and stand fast to the principles that you have acquired during your years at The Hill.

With every good wish to you all,

Sincerely,

Charles C. Watson

For Sixth Formers, this faculty member has provided the invaluable service of laughing at all their fears about the future: "Yea, believe you'll get into college." As a biology teacher, he has the same philosophy: "You're all going to die anyway. Why bother even trying?"

To an outsider, he may seem a bit cynical, but for someone who knows Ranger Rick, he's a man who cares deeply for students and his family, but who saves his love for Intellevision.

He successfully defends his reputation as Patron Saint of Nicotine Fits by nervously smoking cigarette after cigarette during a tight J.V. soccer game or calmly smoking a butt in between biology classes. If not for his urge to gab with students passing by, his cigarette could be finished in one continuous drag. And his diet! A typical Ryckman the Woodsman shopping list: pretzels, coffee cake, M & M's, Oreo's, potato chips, and munchies. A bio teacher!?!

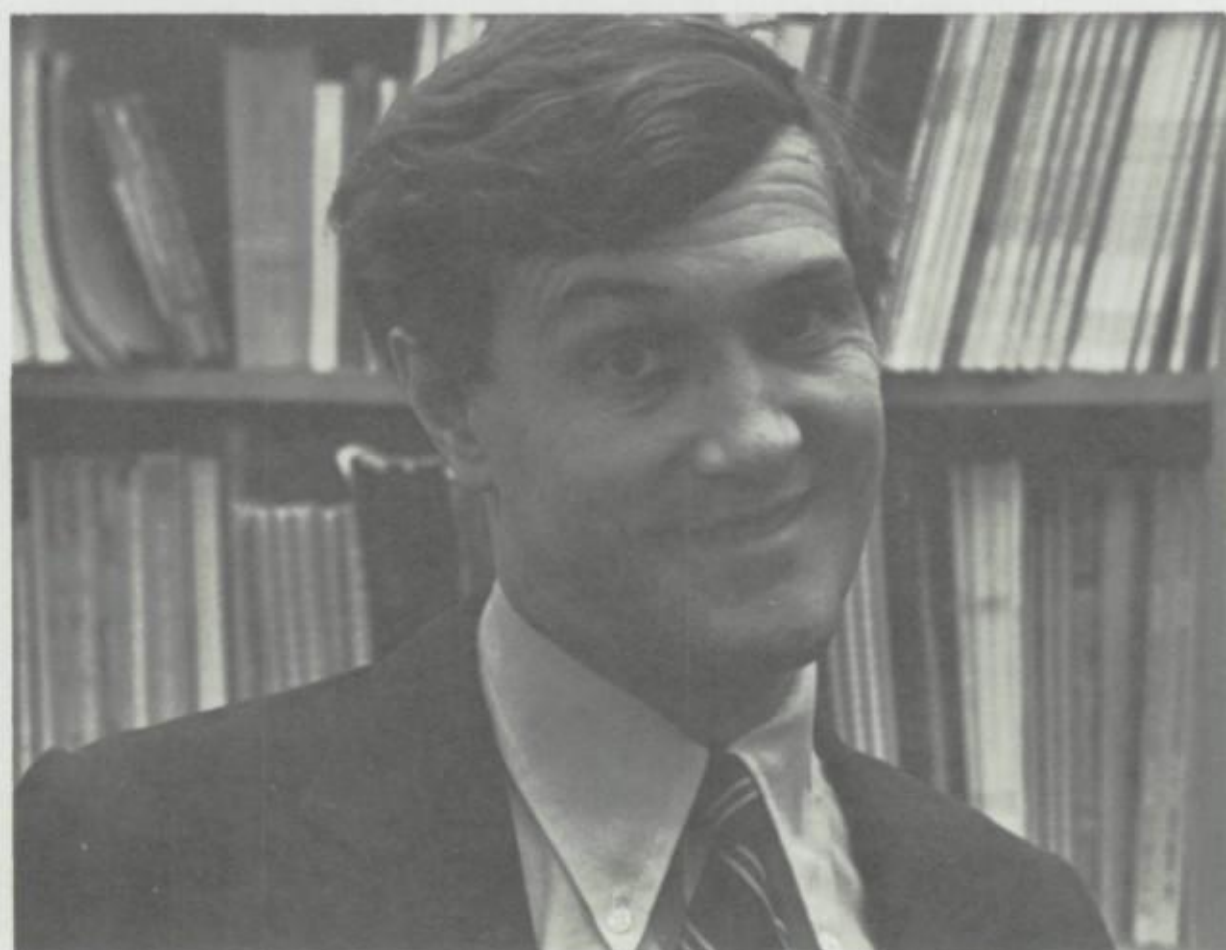

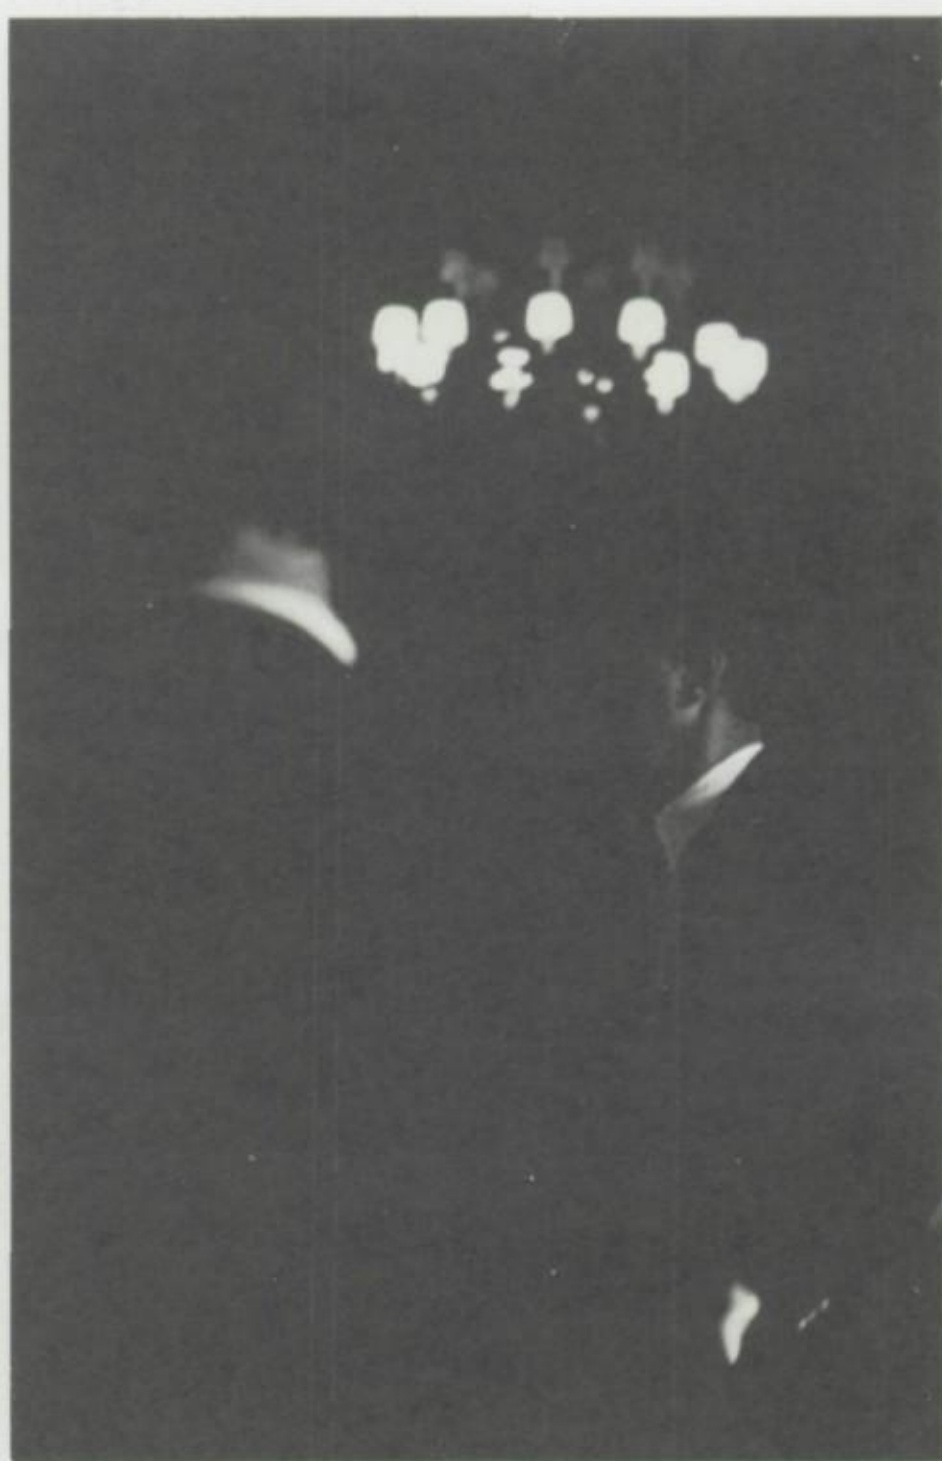

Along with this indulgence in the "seedier" side of life, he shares a healthy love of the outdoors. With his preppy, I'd-rather-be-sailing garb, he looks like someone who has lost his way en route to a regatta. On the far fields, he will occasionally show flares of athletic prowess, shooting a soccer ball on goal, fearlessly disregarding the fact that he has "bum knees".

Whether Mr. Walbridge realizes it or not, he is constantly teaching. Whether it be by wantonly indulging in his weakness for junk food or playing goal during a practice scrimmage or just by catching some brief conversation between classes, he displays a desire for life which serves as a healthy example for all. His put downs aren't to be taken seriously. They're meant to lower your guard, to make the student less anxious about life and enjoy it more. His apartment in Rolfe is a haven for the Sixth Formers plagued by SAT's and college admissions. A relaxing talk with General Video in front of the tube can sometimes do more for a student than reading any textbook could.

The Class of 1982 dedicates it Dial to a faculty member who represents a refuge for the downtrodden student not by reciting maxims or even necessarily giving advice, but just by being himself: Mr. Ryckman R. Walbridge.

I hardly suppose I know anybody who wouldn't rather be a success than a failure,
Just as I suppose every piece of crabgrass in the garden would much rather be an azalea,
And in celestial circles all the run-of-the-mill angels would rather be archangels of at least cherubim or seraphim,
And in the legal world all the little process-servers hope to grow up into great big bailiffim

"IT WAS HELL", RECALLS FORMER CHILD.

When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain,
Before high-piled books, in charactery,
Hold like rich garners the full-ripened grain;
When I behold, upon the nights starred face,
Hugh cloudy symbols of a high romance,
And think that I may never live to trace
Their shadows, with the magic hand of chance;
And when I feel, fair creature of an hour!
That I shall never look upon the more,
Never have relish in the faery power
Of unreflecting love! — then on the shore
Of the wide world I stand alone, and think
'Till love and fame to nothingness do sink.

The Faculty

In Appreciation

At a school like The Hill, the student body benefits immeasurably from a teacher who is able to instill academics with a sense of humor. Not only is it an effective teaching method, it often tends to put a smile on the face of a depressed student.

For the past twenty-one years, The Hill has been fortunate enough to have just such a master. He is Chairman of the History Department and an instructor of U.S. History. In the classroom, this man unleashes a no holds barred assault on the eyes and ears of his students to make a historical event a thing of the present. Whether it be by jumping on his desk, waving a Japanese flag, or by using catch phrases: "We love you king, buuuut . . .," he gets the point across.

As director of and advisor to the Student Activities Committee, he is the man to see for tickets when there is a "hot" concert at the Spectrum or The Tower. By organizing trips to places like D.C. and Great Adventure, he is the savior of many students with the threat of spending another weekend on campus hovering over their heads.

But what's really amazing about this man is the selfless and unequalled energy with which he does everything. Whether it be supervising table-setting in the dining hall, or making a run to Zern's, or organizing bingo tournaments, or throwing erasers at unwary students, you just can't slow the man down.

The Class of 1982 names its Dial in appreciation of possibly the only Italian teacher in History who is affectionately called Japanese, the G-man himself, Mr. David P. Giammattei.

In Recognition

Gradually (in less than four years!), this man has built an empire within The Hill School system. It all began innocently enough. Operating from his office adjacent to the Dining Hall, he catered to the nutritional needs of the ravenous masse of The Hill School at breakfast, lunch, and supper. After a while, the quarters felt cramped; he had to expand.

And expand, he did. He now sits at the head of a multi-faceted food and cleaning empire. With great regularity, he commutes back and forth from the Dining Hall to The Grill, helping out whenever he is needed.

As common a sight in The Student Center as he is in the Dining Hall, his Grill specials of the week, month, day, year, and minute have won wide acclaim.

One would expect the head of such a conglomerate to be a stuffed shirt; he is far from it. Even with his new additions of The Grill and cleaning service, he still has time to share a coke and a smile.

The 1982 Dial is named in recognition of a man who not only has reached our hearts through our stomachs, but by being one hell of a nice guy as well, Mr. Bruce Lukens.

GOOD-BYE, MR. CHIPS

There are certain names which are considered integral parts of The Hill School's history: Matthew Meigs, John Meigs, Alfred "Pa" Rolfe, Edward T. Hall, and others. In the years to come, these names will, in all probability, be joined by another illuminary of The Hill.

Mr. James Moffatt has given 42 years to The Hill, and this fact alone qualifies him as a legend. But he has done so much more. For one, he must hold the School record for number of positions held. To name a few (note the diversity) he's been Assistant Librarian, Latin teacher, Assistant Headmaster, Director of Admissions, and even Acting Headmaster.

It isn't difficult to find the fruits of the work for which he is most renowned; the Hockey Rink, Squash Courts, Chapel windows, the Student Center, and countless numbers of renovations (how can one possibly forget Hunt Upper School?) were paid for with funds which he raised.

And he has done it all by himself. Logging 25,000 miles a year with his wife, he has visited hundreds of alumni (most of whom he knows personally) and raised countless millions of dollars. He hops from state to state and overseas, following a schedule which any of us would find flabbergasting. His "personal touch" method is a tribute to his dedication to the School and its students.

One would think that he would be at least a little rattled by such a hectic pace. Anyone who has spoken with him will tell you the opposite; he is as cool and collected as they come (and equally as pleasant).

Imagine the campus without the Hockey Rink, Squash Courts, Hunt

Upper School, Wendell Student Center, an immeasurable amount of renovations, modernizations and occasionally his friendly, taciturn face (when he is not on the road), and you have a large chunk of The Hill School and one very productive fund raiser missing.

From all of us, the students of The Hill School: Thank you, Mr. Moffatt for everything which you have given us. Thank you for the buildings and equipment which make The Hill School experience a first rate one. Most of all, thank you for caring so much.

Led by Commander-in-Chief Annan and subordinate officers Lee and Jean-Pierre, the Fifth Form launched major offensives on The Hill throughout the course of the year.

The bulk of the troops were situated in the Upper School and Wendell buildings which offered excellent coverage of the Quad and soccer field, although most favored camping out on the far-fields. Saturday nights found soldiers positioned in every sector of the campus; camouflaged in the shadows to avoid detection.

Combat tactics were strictly guerillian; open conflicts had to be avoided at all costs. Daytime confrontations were rare. During evening hours, however, the campus became a war torn battle zone. Chemical warfare was prevalent. Many were killed in action; gunned down in cold blood.

In the morning, we counted our casualties, and the tallies were grim; never before had so many been lost. Some were only wounded. These were the fortunate ones, although they also suffered, as when the battles were lost, they were the primary targets of the war trials.

For the soldiers who gave their lives, no monuments were erected. We have only memories. And as we reflect on those who fought beside us and were taken away so suddenly — Private Treads, Risch, etc. — we came closer and closer to the inevitable conclusion: war is hell.

We're looking for a few good men — The few, the proud, the remaining Fifth Form.

Vital adjustments were in order upon our return to The Hill as fourth formers. The Fourth Form Wendellonians returned for their last year with prefects to find . . . five of them! Middle Schoolers' inner ear balance was upset by sagging floors, but skateboarders made good use of the imperfection.

When we were settled in our rooms, we pulled out our yearbooks to see who was missing from last year: "Eff", "Pinky", "Chamorro", and "Alps". But then there were all those new faces.

Without wasting any time, Bagan returned to his previous position as leader of the form leftists, and then challenged McFarlane to a demerit accumulation contest in which Hunter was the victor. You can't win them all.

While Mom told Wendell that "Pottstown had gone slightly to Hell," "Lewie-Five-O" admonished his boys to avoid fracasces in the halls, dirty bathrooms, messy rooms, and organic gardening.

As if this lecturing and sign-of-busts-to-come from the hallmasters was not enough to handle, we had to contend with Upperformers who considered even the Fourth Form as a means to live out their King-of-The-Hill fantasies. Joel went for a Dell swim and Somerday almost followed. But the most interesting one was Fadi's "If anyone does it, I will" delling. Rumor has it that Mr. Weaver came out to scout him. The only casualties of a Sixth Form assault on Middle School were Ix's Brooks Brother jacket and the clothes he was wearing when they gave him a shower.

The memories from this year are classic: gerbils wreaking havoc in

While the year was fun, it was interspersed with sadness. The Fourth Form's following in the footsteps of the Fifth lost us many good friends who will be missed.

Nevertheless, most of us survived this year and just have two more to go.

In the beginning, the heavens, Earth, and Mr. Senter were created. But this happened long ago and is irrelevant. In the past million or so years, a new form of life — not as low as the Second Form, but still on a lower rung — was created to place an ever greater burden upon the likes of Dr. Groten and Mr. Woodward. This was the Third Form.

President Crimmins, Vice-President Warden, and the Secretary-Treasurer Halliday led the crusade for truth, justice, and the Third Form way.

In our neverending battle with the Upperforms, we had few victories. Our greatest triumph, however, was sweeter than any of their pranks against us could have been: replacing the Class of '82 flag with the Class of '85 flag. Senior heads hung low when the daring switch was discovered. Battle casualties throughout the year included President Crimmins, who fell during a cowardly midnight shaving cream attack on Foster by Rol-fians, and Chipper Rome, who was coerced into taking a shower . . . in academic dress.

We won't soon forget the Winter Track Classic at Foster: an event originated by Foster prefects to make mark time fun for everyone except faculty-wives, who complained about our athletic attire . . . or the lack of it. And we'll always feel a little betrayed by hallmasters who locked us outside to be white-washed by Upper-formers.

Academics went well. Mr. Senter's classes were informative. Mr. Greene's tests became major obstacles on the way to the Fourth Form, and biology tests were:

a) impossible, b) nifty, c) questionable, or d) none of the above.

They're known by different names: Some call them the Second Form. Some call them the wee folk.

It's not a matter of their not coming out when the big folk are around (although they is a might timid). No, the big folk just never take notice of 'em. You may meet one when you're on your hands and knees, trying to see if there's any mail in your bottom row mailbox. One of these wee folk may be struggling to reach high enough to get to his bottom row mailbox. Maybe you've tripped over one. They can easily get caught under your feet and be your downfall. Or maybe you've been a good samaritan and gotten one of the lads telephone books to put under his bottom so that he can reach his food in the dining hall.

But if you haven't seen a Second Former, go over to Markle or Johnson House one of these nights and peek into one of the windows. But make sure it's before 9:45, because they like to get their allotted amount of sleep.

Mr. and Mrs. Kowalchik are the big people who care for the little rascals living in Markle, with prefects John Millikin and Tad Bosch while Mr. and Mrs. Borger, along with prefects Pinckney Benedict and Dan Wexselblatt, care for the rest in Johnson. (Yea, right! It was that easy?)

comme ca! Sans Blague! Mais ne vous en faites pas, mesmames et messieurs, "on n'est pas serieux quand on a dix-sept ans" -Ribaud. Peu importe. Toute ca ne nous regarde nullement. Au lieu de vous raser tous, j'ai ramene avec moi cette fois un truc special, un bijou de valeur inexprimable qui vous fera rire, au moins. Baillez pas! Ceci va vous faire baver par terre, tu m'entends? Eh bien: Quelle est la difference entre une femme et un miroir? Eh bien. Silence? Qu'entends-je? Mais c'est bien evident, non? L'un reflechit sans reflechir... Pas mal, non?

D'accord, essayons encore. Hmmm... Je me souviens de... Je l'ai sur le bout de la langue... ah oui! Quelle est la difference entre un fermier normande et un malade? Personne? C'est curieux: le fermier va de pis en pis, et le malade va de mieux en mieux.

The Pep Band appeared at many home football games, and even played for the first half of the Peddie game. A smashing performance at the Pep Rally reaped heaped encomiums and a standing ovation for the band. Admittedly, there were no seats available for the rally spectators and the clapping served to warm cold hands; however, the band did triumph over the Lawrenceville Ash Can Band. Another bright spot on the calendar was the Christmas Candelight Service where the band really shined.

The Jazz Band took on a new appearance this year. With the addition of electric guitars and keyboards it gained versatility. With some 30 Jazz pieces in their repertoire, the Jazz men played everything from Count Basie to Spyro-Gyra. After performing at the King of Prussia, Coventry, and Exton malls, as well as other sports around Pottstown, the Jazz Band ended the year with a successful concert on the Hill.

In their 28th year both the Hilltones and the Glee Club had a marvelous season of performances. The 50 member Glee Club earned rave reviews for its performance of "Testament of Freedom" in Washington D.C. whilst the Hilltones performed before all the home dances and participated in an enjoyable and rewarding series of concerts in St. Croix. The Hilltones, who this year had an entirely new bass section, also performed at hotels and country clubs. As if this were not enough, members of both groups participated in Patience by Gilbert and Sullivan and in a contemporary version of The Two Gentlemen from Verona.

Both the Glee Club and Hilltones wish to thank the officers, Todd Leyland, Sherman Ewing, and Deke Fine for all their efforts. However, praise must go to Mr. Tuttle whose enthusiasm and guidance produces such excellent results. Well, on to year 29.

After a whirlwind year of touring abroad, the world renowned Hill School Drama Club settled down for a 1981-82 season at home. Mr. Morinelli, director of the troupe of premiere actors and stagehands, whose expertise in the field of stagehandling is sought after around the globe, felt "the Gang" (his affectionate name for his handpicked Hillies) needed a rest, so, he cancelled numerous performances on Broadway and even good will excursions to Moscow and Red China in order to allow them a rest and to give faculty, students, and friends of The Hill a year full of treats.

With grants from The Ellis Foundation for the arts, The Drama Club put on Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience and Menatti's Amahl and the Night Visitors with the cooperation of Mr. Tuttle and the Glee Club. Independent studies by Todd Leyland, who produced and directed the Shakespearean rock opera Two Gentlemen from Verona and Pete Pugliese, who masterminded the nonsensical production of The Bald Soprano were loaned actors and a stage crew from the Drama Club. A number of students worked as the stage crew for their independent studies.

If reviews continue to be as flattering for The Drama Club as they were for the 81-82 season, it should be flying high for years to come.

September 8th was a rainy day and also the first day of early practice. Forty candidates, including eleven returning lettermen, sloshed through the mud doing sled drills, up-downs, and running sprints.

The hot sun soon replaced the clouds and baked the mud, splinting shins and swelling ankles and knees. The players persevered, knowing that only sixteen practice days remained before opening day. By September 16th the team was chosen: thirty-two players, including captain and Durell Award winner, Bob Wakefield. Two scrimmages against Haverford School and Wyoming Seminary readied the team for the regular season.

The regular season started with a 27-7 loss to Germantown Academy. Too many penalties and missed opportunities, early season mistakes, cost The Hill a game it had dominated. On the first possession, the Blues drove down the field and scored when Wass plunged into the end zone. Unfortunately, G.A. scored twenty unanswered points to hand The Hill the loss.

The grid men were again plagued by penalties and turnovers in their loss to Valley Forge Military Academy, 22-0. The Hill Defense was forced to play for three quarters against a well-drilled V.F.M.A. team, which did not turn the ball over once. The absence of Captain Wakefield, who was injured, also hurt the team.

The first quarter of the third game, against Perkiomen, was a repeat of the preceding two. Running plays faltered because of poor timing, passes fell just short of or just beyond receivers. The defense, though, played superbly, three times stopping the Perkiomen Indians inside the ten. In the second quarter, the Blues took charge. Wass blocked a Perkiomen punt, and Sarge grabbed the ball in mid-air and ran it to the Indians' twenty. After two fullback bellies and a Lesemann dive, Wasserman charged in for the T.D. Speno passes to Slough in the second and third quarters also produced scores. I.V. Funke, with ten tackles, and Joe Petite, with three interceptions and a fumble recovery, led the defense. Perkiomen was handily beaten by a score of 19-8.

William Penn Charter proved to be too big and quick for the team. Mental errors and turnovers also cost the grid men dearly, and the Blues were defeated 24-7.

The long three hour drive to Mercersburg was well worth the 41-8 Hill victory. Petite scored two T.D.'s in the first half on thirty and one yard runs. The second half was highlighted by a Dave Allen 50 yard run into the end zone. A great day ended sadly: Joe Petite collided with a Mercersburg receiver, broke his elbow, and missed the remainder of the season.

Blair traveled to The Hill and gave the Blues their closest game of the season. The grid men's offense, paced by a ninety-four yard Wasserman touchdown run, gave The Hill a four point lead. But with fifty-four seconds left, a thirty-five yard pass connected with a Blair receiver to give Blair the win, 21-18.

The last home game, against Peddie, allowed the home crowd to watch The Hill march down the field to victory, 27-12. The defense, as always, was awesome. Wasserman and Timateo blocked punts to set up two quick T.D.'s, one being run in by Shaffer. Fritz Hamburg picked off an errant screen pass and ran it in for the score. The defense held Peddie to a mere forty-two yards. The offense also had a banner day, grinding out 212 yards.

Unfortunately, The Hill was not as successful against the Jersey state champs, Lawrenceville. Mental errors and missed opportunities, mistakes which marred the Blues in all their losses, gave L'ville a 30-0 victory.

The season was in no way disappointing. It was evident to everyone that two of the three games lost, against G.A. and Blair, should have been victories. Even though the team's record was not a winning one, the coaches and players of the 1981 team view the season as a successful one.

The Hill Harriers easily won their first three meets against German-town, Valley Forge Military Academy, and The Haverford School by scores of 18-42, 19-40, and 21-35 respectively. The fourth meet pitted The Hill against a reasonably strong Penn Charter team. The Hill won this meet, scoring 25 points to Penn Charter's 30 and went on to defeat a powerful Episcopal Academy team, 24-32, keeping its unbeaten streak alive.

Then the leg-men experienced a slight setback when their winning streak was snapped by a speedy Mercersburg team which beat The Hill by a score of 26-29. Good use was made of the four games remaining before the Lawrenceville meet. Westtown, Blair, and Peddie were victims of The Harriers' hit-and-run, losing by scores of 25-31, 16-47, and 17-40. The Academy of the New Church was the only one of the four teams to escape The Hill's wrath, tying the team by a score of 28-28.

Steve Dubinski won every race of the season, with the exception of Lawrenceville where The Hill lost 38-23, setting course records at Valley Forge and Mercersburg. Andy Hahn, Ted Ridgeway, Peter Shrock, Jim Van Derzee, and Mike McClellan usually followed Captain Dubinski in that order. Seniors McGrory and Rexer were sidelined for the latter part of the season with stress fractures.

While not matching the undefeated record of last year's team, cross-country posted an impressive 8-2-1 record.

Chris Shiver: (6th) Goalie — Captain. Known for his "passive" goaltending style. Emotional leader of team, shows promising future.

Alberto Mestre: (6th) The legend speaks for itself. Led team in goals (49) and kickouts. Crowd pleaser at Lower Moreland. Defense according to Albert: "Just grab your man by the suit so you know where he is."

Lee DiPrizito: (6th) Key to offense. Scored 25 goals and had many assists. Voted defensive player of the year. "Gruesome Twosome" with Hogan.

Kevin Granger: (6th) The little guy on the squad. Kevin's experience in and knowledge of the game were invaluable. Future Mr. Weaver clone — "Gentlemen, whhyyy . . ."

Mike Wilson: (6th) Defensive specialist. Mike played Ready-Freddy Even-Steven at Lawrenceville. Mr. Conservative. Mr. Weaver's video partner.

Eric Wagner: (6th) Direct from California complete with broken paddle. Known for his "turn-around jumper." Perhaps the best skills on the team. "I thought x was a letter!"

Tim Caples: (6th) First sub. Could always be counted on for a goal. Steady, solid, smooth-strokin' Tim.

Andy Epstein: (6th) Into the Praying Mantis look. Incredible Hulk of the squad. Subbed late, kicked out early. Fast as lightning.

Frank Hogan: (5th) Second leading scorer with 30. Hit the overtime game winner against Deerfield. Hollywood.

Robert Vollmer: (5th) Hat-trick against Reading. Best Attitude on the team. Charlie Hustle.

Philip Hammarskjold: (5th) Long name, short stroke. Consistent, early sub. Team Trash Man.

Milos Jiricko: (5th) Scored every time he touched the ball. Longs to sit in the alcove with Mr. Eddy.

George Brady: (5th) Core of the fifth form heavies. Albert Jr. "Ya, right."

Kevin Modarress: (5th) Goalie. Has ability to fill vacated goalie spot. Famous for making spectacular saves with his nose.

Coach Weaver: Head Coach and team leader. Got along especially well with the Mercersburg refs. "Gentlemen, get in the water!"

Coach "Baby Face" Nelson: Led J.V.'s to an 8-2 record. "What do ya mean he's a teacher?"

Coach "Maddog" Fryer: Official timer, assistant coach, scorekeeper, and physical strength coordinator. Mario Andretti of the coaching staff.

The season started with losses against Reading High School (7-6) and Lawrenceville (17-7). The Hill bounced back with wins against Deerfield (14-13), Wilson (20-12), Cumberland Valley (14-5), Lower Moreland (16-4), and Reading H.S. (18-8). The next two games saw the Blues fall to Mercersburg (8-11), but swamp Lower Moreland for the second time (10-7).

Varsity Water Polo

The season ended on a bit of a sad note, with The Hill, minus Mestre in the second half, losing their last game to Lawrenceville (7-18), giving the polo men a record of 7 wins and 4 losses for the season.

When we look back on the past season, we remember the good times and the bad. Yet at the apex of our thoughts lies our sincere gratitude to the coaching staff of Messrs. Fryer, Nelson, and especially Weaver. He coached us, tutored us, pushed us, fought for us, and in the end led us to victory. One cannot begin to imagine how much he has given of himself in guiding us to success, both as a team and as individuals. For his unfathomable efforts, we thank him dearly. Furthermore, we wish the best of luck to Mr. Nelson who takes over the varsity coaching position in the '82 season.

For eleven days before classes started, the soccer team had practice three times a day. Mr. Ealy and Rev. Bensinger sadistically watched as the team did such drills as "bastards" and "agonies." But after all the hard work, the team looked forward to a very promising season.

John Brennan, Bill Brady, J.J. Gilda, Rob Malster, and Mark Thompson formed the defensive wall around goalie Marshall Welch. Together, they allowed very few opponents to score. Jack Daniel, Sang Lee, Steve Loftus, and Ken Matsushita controlled the midfield and initiated the attack. Luke Allen, Jim Ballentine, Geoff Carroll, Sherman Ewing, Fred Lee, Mark Lewis, and Sam McGuinness finished the attack. Captains Ballentine and Welch served as mediators between the coaches and the team in addition to serving as the spiritual leaders.

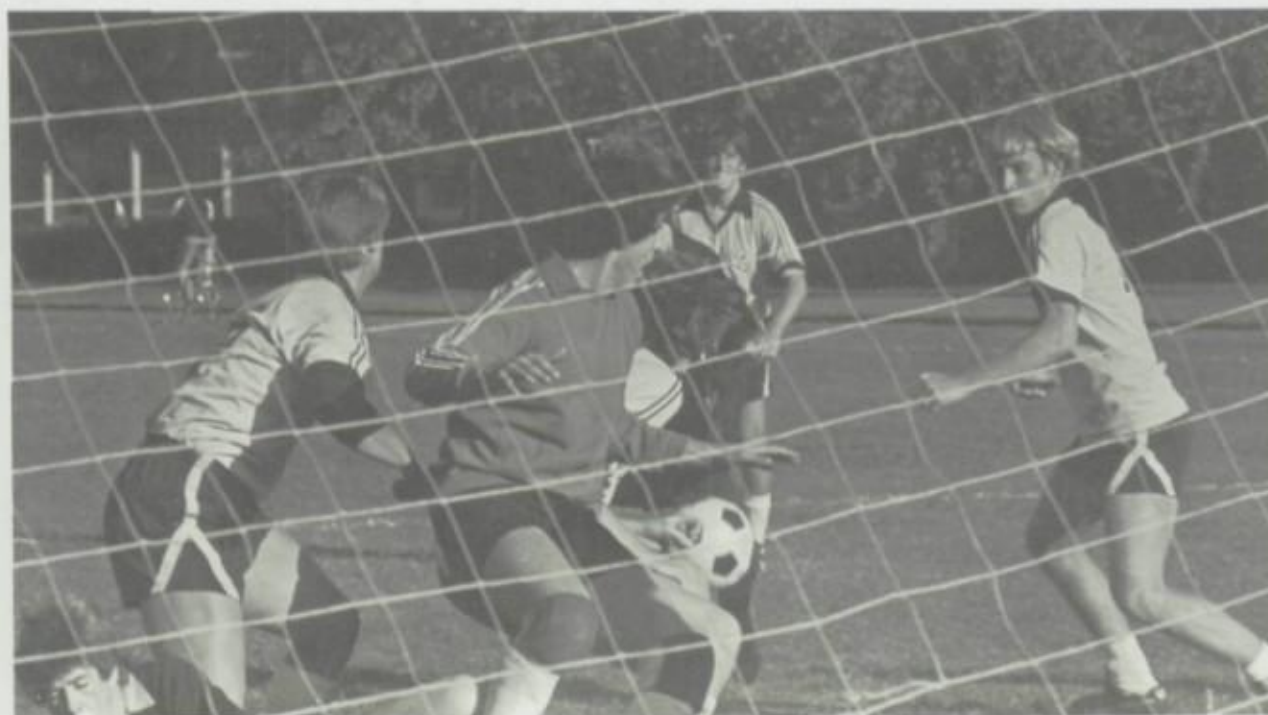

The team started out as expected, winning the first two games decisively against Girard College (4-0) and Germantown Academy (5-0). But then the soccer team became cocky, and it took three consecutive shutout losses against Episcopal (0-2), Kiski (0-1), and The Haverford School (0-4) to bring the Blues back to earth. The Hill landed in style, beating Moravian Academy (6-0), Wyoming Seminary (2-0), Chestnut Hill Academy (2-0), William Penn Charter School (5-2), Valley Forge M.A. (5-2), and Mercersburg Academy (4-1). The Hill tied Westtown School (2-2) in double overtime before crushing Blair Academy (4-1), and Owen J. Roberts H.S. (8-1). The team suffered an unexpected loss to Swarthmore College J.V.'s (1-2) followed by victories over Peddie School (2-1) and George School (3-0).

The final game versus the New Jersey prep school champions, Lawrenceville, ended in a (1-1) double overtime tie, climaxing one of the finest Hill soccer seasons with 12 wins, 4 losses, and 2 ties.

Varsity Hockey

The 81-82 Hill School hockey team compiled an impressive 18-3 record.

The season got off on the right foot with victories over The Bristol Badgers (4-2) and Valley Forge (5-2).

In the prestigious L'ville Tournament, The Blue Blades placed third with wins against Kent School (1-0) and tourney namesake L'ville (4-0). The only loss was to the tournament winner Belmont Hill (2-5). Taubkin was incredible throughout the tournament in goal, as were Wass, Karmozyn, and Zucker on defense and Boudreault, Mundy, Lerro, Tremblay, Carroll, and Captain Brady on offense.

The Ice men came back refreshed from Christmas break and smashed Lawrence Township (7-0). The story of the game was Carroll, whose 4 goal effort was indeed a magnificent performance. Taubkin, as usual, was Mr. Consistency between the pipes.

A hapless Princeton Day School team fell to The Hill (5-2) before Ecc's wonders travelled to New England to face The Moses Brown School and Pom-Fret. They had their only loss in non-tournament play against Moses Brown (4-5), but came back strongly to beat Pomfret (5-2). Defensesman Wasserman had the winning goal.

Princeton Day School played The Hill for the second time, but the result was the same as in the first game, a loss (4-2). The Bristol Badgers also tried their luck for a second time but fell once again to the Ice Men (4-3). This game was a bit more action packed, however, ending with a goal in sudden death overtime by Tremblay. Loomis School was The Blue's 9th victim of the season, losing by a score of (6-2). Captain Brady added his special touch to this game with a hat trick.

The Blue hosted Pomfret next, in what turned out to be a neck and neck battle. Going into the third period the game was tied at 2-2. Pomfret received a penalty in the third period, however, and Boudreault, Tremblay, Carroll scored one power play goal apiece to put The Hill on top, (5-2).

In the Princeton J.V. game, the Ice-landers had their third loss (2-3), but bounced back to beat L'ville (6-1), Wissahocken (8-2), L'ville again (4-1) and Peddie (5-0) before thrashing Moses Brown, Mr. Eccleston's high school alma mater, (8-3). The season ended with victories over Valley Forge (4-1) and Bucknell Hockey Club (10-1) for Ec's 500th.

Spoon Donaldson probably received the greatest honor of any of this year's players by being selected as one of the finest high school blade men by The Welles Skate Co. Nice skates, eh Spoon?

The Hill Fish swam to a strong 2nd place finish in The Hill Relays to open the season, falling to the defending national champs Mercersburg, but finishing far ahead of German-town Academy, Peddie School, and Lawrenceville.

During all the revelry on the team's trip to Ohio, the Gill Men found time to massacre Worthington High School (95½-66½), demolish Upper Arlington (106-66) and annihilate Baylor of Tennessee (106-66). Records were set by Wagner in the 200 individual medley (1:55; Hill and Upper Arlington record); Mestre in the 100 freestyle (45.46; Arlington pool record) and in the 50 freestyle (21.23; Worthington pool record); Caples, Shiver, Epstein, and Mestre in the relay (Arlington pool record); Wagner, Wilson, Brady, and Mestre in the medley relay (Worthington pool record).

The Blues carried a 3-0 record into the Calvert Hall meet, winning a close one, 89-80. Weaver's Wonders came out of the Mercersburg meet with their first dual meet loss, 101-71. Even Wagner's breaking his own school record in the 200 individual medley with a time of 1:55.3 and nearly breaking the school record in the breaststroke coupled with Mestre's near record times in the 50 and 100 freestyles couldn't put The Blues past the defending National Prep School Champs.

Swimming against Loyola without Captain Mestre was difficult, but The Hill managed to swim away with the meet, 93-78. Hogan was the big man in this meet, winning the 50 and 100 freestyles, Mestre's specialities, in personal best times. The medley relay of Wagner, Boyd, Brady, and Epstein set a new pool record with a time of 1:38.1.

Still without Captain Mestre, the Fish in Blue travelled to Annapolis to swim against the Naval Academy J.V. squad and Fork Union Military Academy. Easily placing First in the tri-meet, the team shattered national metric records in the process: Wagner, Brady, Wilson, and Epstein in the medley relay (by 4 seconds); Wagner in the individual medley (by 7 seconds); Epstein in the 50 freestyle. Boyd set a record in the 100 freestyle and Wagner captured the last segment of a three record performance by exploding the pool record in the 100 backstroke. The 400 freestyle relay team of Epstein, Hogan, Caples and Boyd set a new national record.

A disappointing loss to German-town (90-82) was followed by a smashing victory over L'ville, (118-51). Wagner, swimming an exhibition 100 breaststroke in 59.75, set a new pool record at the L'ville meet.

After destroying the U.S. Military Academy J.V. squad (92-79), the Blue Fins headed for Lawrenceville and the Easterns.

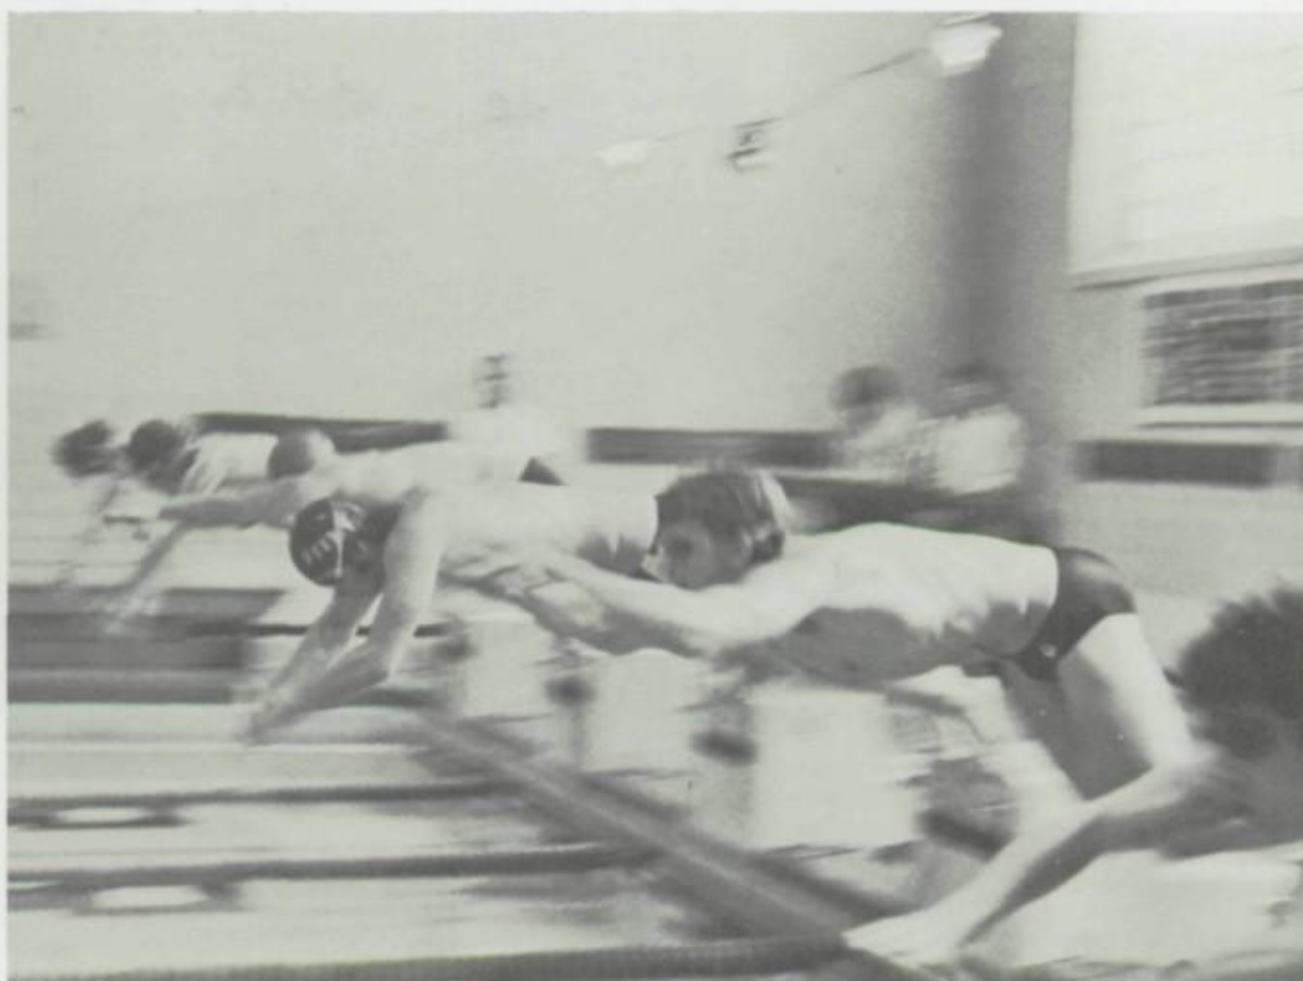

At the Easterns, The Hill placed a strong fourth. School records were set left and right: Wagner, Brady, Wilson, and Epstein in the medley relay; Mestre in the 50 free as well as in the 100 free; Wagner in the 200 IM as well as in the 100 breast; Hogan, Boyd, Caples and Mestre in the 400 free relay.

The entire team rejoiced with Wagner throughout the season as he set record after record, proving to be a very valuable new addition to the team. And the entire team shared a deep concern for Captain Mestre during his sickness. With Mestre's return, however, the team continued its winning ways with a smile. Every swimmer on the 81-82 swim team did his part to make the season one of success and camaraderie. It was definitely a time to be remembered by all the members of the team.

Basketball is one of the most consistent sports played at The Hill and this year's Hill basketball team proved to be no exception. While The Hoopsters did not match last year's 18-6 record, they did post a solid record of 13-8 to end the season. The final record, however, cannot serve to gauge the team's real talent, as most of the games that Hill lost were by very close scores or to very talented ball clubs.

The Hill began the season on a positive note, defeating a traditionally tough Swarthmore Junior Varsity at home, (65-42). A few days later, Hill edged by Germantown Friends (52-49).

The next five games were all tournament games. At the Peddie Invitational Tournament, The Hill was defeated by a tough Hun School club (28-41) but came back the next day to soundly defeat Adelphi Academy, (55-32). Hill squeaked by Trinity-Pawling in the first game of the Hill Invitational Tournament (54-53) but then suffered two defeats to take fourth place in the tournament. The Blues suffered a crushing defeat to Episcopal Academy (34-66) and then lost a close one to a sharp Governor Dummer club (46-47).

Hill played the next game on the road, beating Perkiomen School (55-42). The team then came home to breeze by Friends Central (57-32). The Blues traveled to Reading to play the Albright College Junior Varsity. After three evenly matched quarters of basketball, Albright pulled ahead in the fourth quarter to win the game (53-65).

In the next three games, the Big Guys beat Princeton Day School (60-52) and defeated Blair Academy (82-55) but was beaten once more by Episcopal Academy (41-76). They pulled out two close games against Mercersburg (46-45) and German-town Academy (44-41). Penn Charter Academy proved to be tough, however, and Hill suffered a defeat (46-65), ending a three game winning streak.

As usual, the b'ballers were all primed for Lawrenceville and in the most exciting game of the year, Hill beat The 'Ville in overtime (46-44). Academy of the New Church proved no match for The Hill and were defeated (55-40).

In a second game against Lawrenceville, the Lawrenceville team won a convincing victory over Hill (41-60). The Hoopsters suffered another loss against Peddie School (52-61) but then bounced back against Williamson Trade School (64-42) in the final game of the season.

This year's team was a particularly young one. Only three senior lettermen returned, and there were no post-graduate players. The team benefited greatly throughout the season from the strong leadership of the co-captains Bill Cochrane and Mark Thompson.

Much of the team's success this year was due largely to the defense. John Yonge did an excellent job at closing up the middle and getting the rebounds while the entire team kept the opponent's score down to help pull out the close games, notably against Lawrenceville and Mercersburg.

Offensively, The Netmen played well, led by the passing of Frank Speno and Mark Thompson and leading scorers Cochrane, Thompson, and Yonge.

The Hill played a surprisingly tough schedule this year, often facing and defeating teams of greater experience. Of course, it has been said many times in the past that team spirit wins ballgames. This year's Hill team played well together, and there is no doubt that each player's selflessness and desire to win made the season a successful one.

Captained by Larry Walsh and coached Mr. Lane, The Hill Squash Men had a reasonably good season with a record of 11-6.

The season started off with a trip to Philadelphia for the Hunter Lott Tournament. Captain Walsh and Tim Slough both reached the quarterfinals of the tourney.

The rest of the team did well in its match against Penn Charter. Not one Blue lost as The Hill swept the match, (7-0).

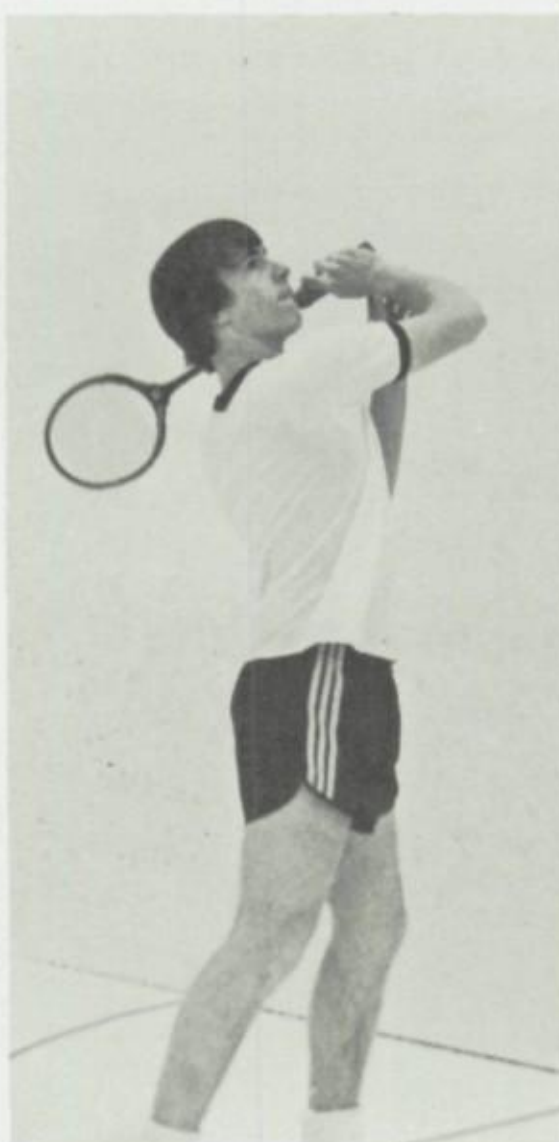

At the U.S. Nationals held at West Point, Tim Slough did The Hill proud by winning the consolation finals.

St. Andrews was a relatively easy (6-1) victory for The Hill, but Haverford School was a different story. Though The Blues beat the national champs the year before, they were handily beaten, (0-7). The racquetmen got it together after the disheartening Haverford loss and went on to maul Mercersburg (6-1), Chestnut Hill (7-0), Swarthmore College (7-2), and Episcopal (7-0) before falling to Chestnut Hill the second time around, (3-4). The Blues won the next two games against St. Andrews (5-2), and Episcopal (6-1), but could not quite pull it together against Navy (5-4) and Haverford (7-0). A tough loss to Princeton J.V. (1-8) and a win against Penn J.V. (4-3) closed the dual season.

In the Episcopal Tournament, Tim Slough and Larry Walsh made the quarterfinals.

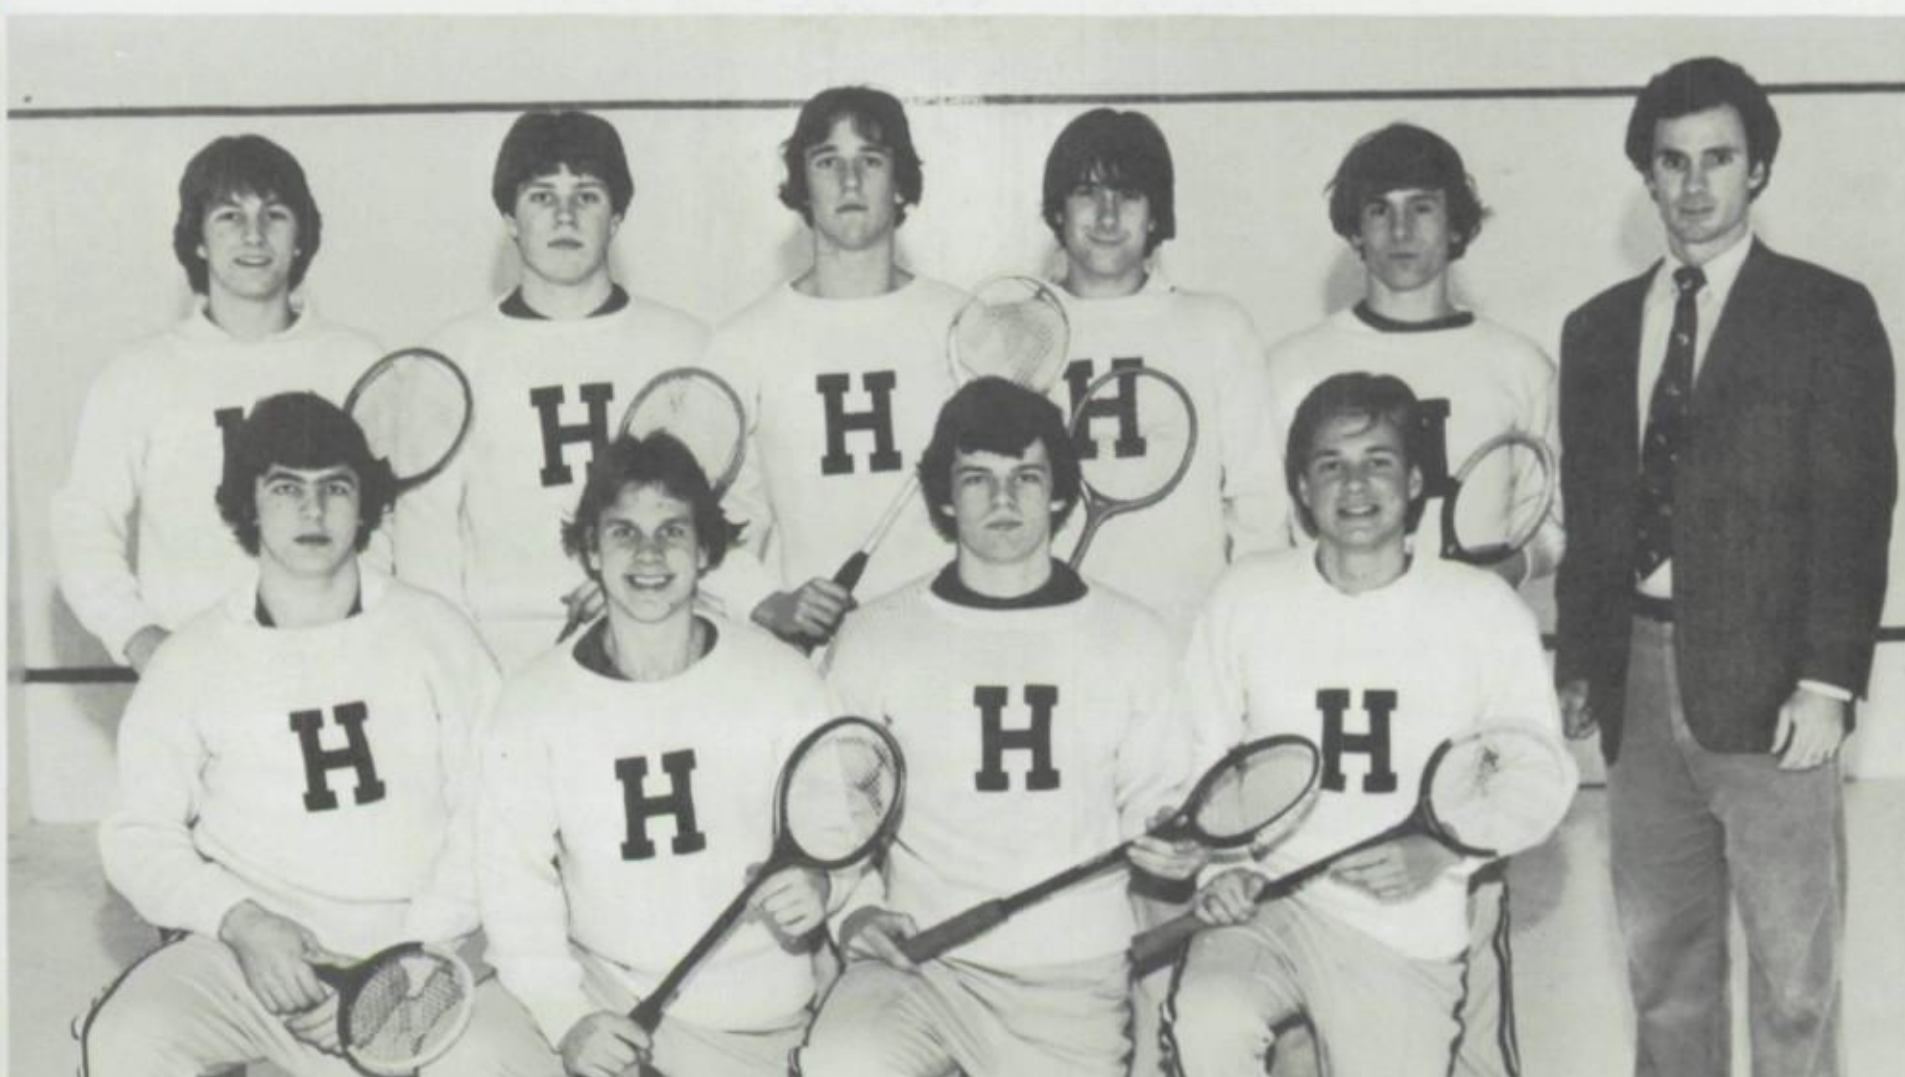

Geoff Kennedy won the INSILCO Tournament, earning the honor of travelling to San Francisco to represent The Hill School.

Larry Walsh, T. Slough, G. Kennedy, and P. Stauffer occupied the top 4 team slots, changing rank continually. Alf Kennedy held the number 5 spot rather securely as Hamburg, Woerhle, Wentz, and Hagemeyer were in the 6 through 9 positions. The season was interspersed with memorable "unexpecteds": Slough's missing the bus to Haverford; getting stuck on the way back from St. Andrews; pushing cars up the hill; Mercersburg's forgetting to appear at the match; etc. Little things like these, combined with an overall good record, made the season a memorable one.

The season began before Christmas with the Perkiomen Takedown Tournament, where the squad demonstrated its strength. Without the injured Doug Reed, owner of a two year undefeated streak, The Hill placed second to the Academy of the New Church. Champions Eric Pearson, Wes Schantz, Ted Ridgway; runners-up Howard Butcher, and Chris Cornish contributed to an outstanding team performance.

After the tournament, The Blues crushed Malvern Prep, 54-9, Perkiomen, 39-22 (without injured Reed or Captain Pearson), and Bishop Kendrick, 51-12 to earn an invitation to a Germantown quad meet.

At the quad meet, The Hill smashed Germantown Academy, 46-9, lost to Blair, 42-12, and defeated, in a thrilling match, perennial New England power Suffield Academy, 33-29. Behind 12-0 after three bouts, The Blues began their comeback when Eric Pearson won a wild takedown contest, 10-8. Wes Schantz and Chris Cornish followed with crucial pins, and Chris Mullaney also won to grab The Hill's first lead. Suffield rallied to go ahead 29-24 after ten bouts. But Howard Butcher and Pudge Sierk won to capture a courageous come-from-behind nailbiter.

After the Christmas vacation the wrestlers travelled to Massachusetts to face their toughest competition of the season in The Milton Tournament. Champions Wes Schantz and Doug Reed; runners-up Eric Pearson and Andy Schantz; consolation winners Rick "Bison", Howard Butcher, and Jim Sierk (who wrestled with a broken collar bone) led The Hill to a fourth place finish behind Blair Academy, The National Prep Champions; Lowell High School, the Massachusetts state champions; and an all-star New England Prep team. Chris Cornish and Doug Reed were elected to the all-tournament insult team as they busted on "Faceless" et al. for nine hours as the vans rolled down Interstate 84.

Confident and tournament tough, The Blues returned home to pin Upper Darby, 41-19, and to await a rematch with Blair. The entire team was ready and, for the first time, healthy. But snow and sleet caused the match to be cancelled. The Blues took a day off, then blasted Peddie, 55-9.

On January 30, Mercersburg, a tough and talented rival, and Simon Gratz High School visited for a tri-meet. Andy Schantz opened the Mercersburg match with an important 7-4 decision. Eric Pearson, Ted Ridgway, and Wes Schantz followed with pins, Doug Reed won a lopsided 13-0 decision to put The Blues ahead 26-9. But Mercersburg, always up and recently successful against The Hill, battled back to trail only 26-20 after ten bouts. Pudge Sierk wrestled for the match and won, pinning his opponent in 3:55. The team, after dumping Mercersburg 32-26, blasted Simon Gratz, 46-8.

In a match of great strength and endurance, The Blues beat Episcopal Academy, 31-26, in an ulcer buster. With Andy Schantz's 16-5 decision, The Hill took an early 4-0 lead but watched it disappear. Ted Ridgway won to begin yet another comeback. Eric Pearson, wrestling up two-weights, tied 4-4. Wes Schantz won 14-2. Doug Reed pinned his opponent to stretch the lead to seven points. Later, Rick Bisson won big, 17-7. But after ten bouts, The Blues led only 25-20. Jim Sierk planted his opponent in :30 to guarantee victory.

After Episcopal, the wrestlers travelled to Wilkes-Barre to rout Wyoming Seminary, 42-23. From the first bout — when this year's A. Realus Dufus, Felix Zvarick, decked his opponent — The Blues dominated. John Dawkins, the only Hill Grappler in recent memory to pin himself, also felled a Knight.

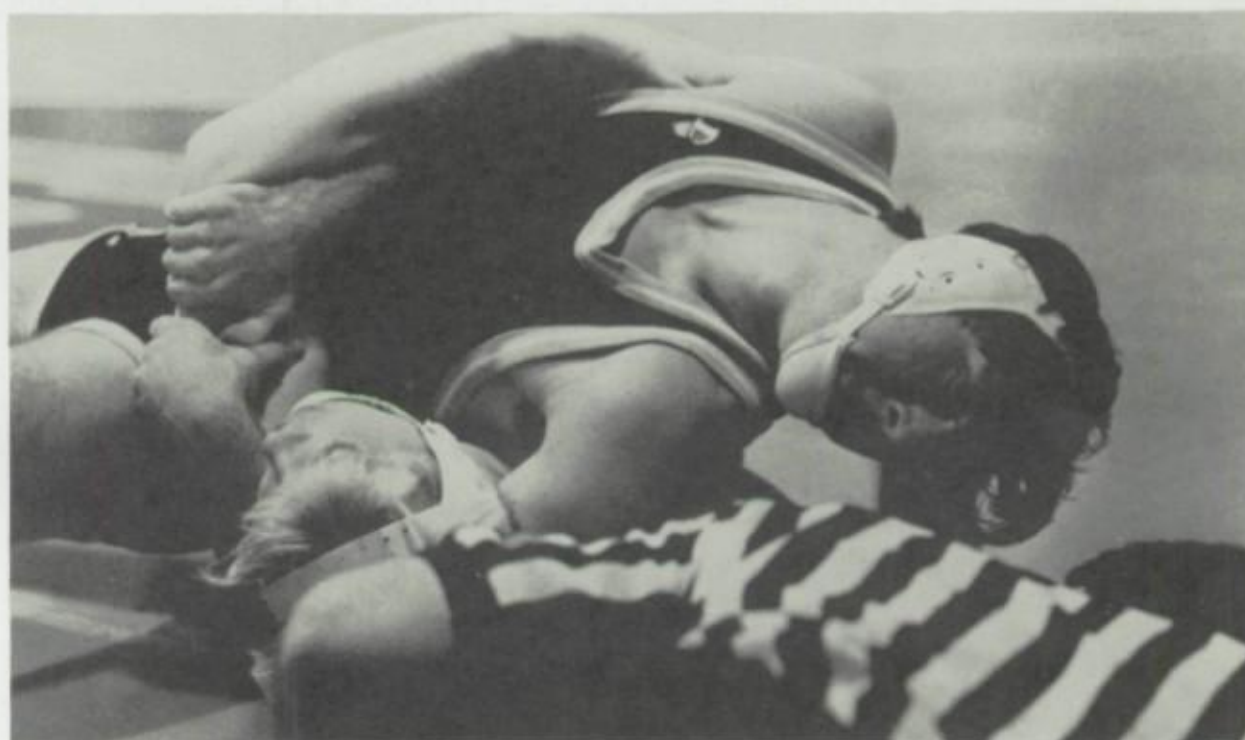

Powerful Academy of the New Church followed. Andy Schantz and Eric Pearson won by falls, but after four weight classes, the score was tied 12-12. Ted Ridgway and Wes Schantz pounded out decisions, 11-4 and 14-2. Doug Reed scored a fast pin, upping the score to 26-12. But A.N.C. fought back. After Howard Butcher, still recovering from pneumonia, lost a thriller, The Hill led 26-21. Pudge Sierk and A.N.C.'s Pete Heffley slammed each other all over Bryn Athyn, Sierk, covering the mat with blood, won 15-9. The Blues beat Academy of the New Church, 29-27, to tie the school record for dual meet victories.

Even before the Philadelphia and Lehigh tournaments, The Hill wrestling team distinguished itself. On February 13, The Blues beat Lawrenceville, 36-24, avenging last year's two-point loss and setting a school record for dual meet victories.

For the last two matches, The Hill Wrestlers travelled to Haverford and William Penn Charter. The Blues thumped the Fords by a deceptively large score, 32-12 in the closest blowout of the year. The fearsome foursome in the heart of the line-up — Ridgway, Pearson, Schantz, and Reed — could not put their opponents on their backs. All won tough decisions. Rick Bisson and Adam Baitel added consecutive two-point decisions to secure a victory. Howard Butcher and Pudge Sierk, both wrestling up a weight, canvassed Fords, turning a squeaker into a rout.

At Penn Charter, The Blues met another rugged, talented team for the perfect end to an outstanding dual meet season, the perfect preparation for Philadelphia and Lehigh National Tournaments. Power, experience, and pride beat Penn Charter, 32-28.

The first meet of the season for the Winter Track team was the Lawrenceville Relays in which The Blues competed against thirteen other schools. Mark Lewis and Hank Brawner combined for a fifth place in the high jump relays with a height of 11 feet 4 inches totaled. The hurdle relay team of Zonies, Brawner, Conger, and Lewis placed an impressive fourth in the hurdle relay. In a very exciting distance medley relay, Brennan, Hahn, K. Smith, and Distance Captain Dubinski placed 5th overall as did the spring medley relay team of Malcolm, Cooper, Harris, and Crutchfield. The team placed third, but without the services of Sprint Captain Madden, who was out for the season due to injury.

On Saturday, February 6, the Snow Treaders travelled to Peddie School to compete against The Pingry School, Poly Prep, and Peddie. The team placed second, losing only to a strong Peddie team, and had three overall winners. Dubinski placed first in the one mile and two mile, while Lewis won in the high jump, and Hahn captured first in the 880.

The Blues were pitted against a strong Lawrenceville team and suffered a disappointing loss for the last meet of the season. Winners in their events were Cooper in the 60 yard dash, Dubinski in the 1 mile and the 2 mile, Hahn in the 880, and Mark Lewis in the high jump. Lewis, who also placed second in the hurdles, was the story of the day, as he set a new Hill School high jump record, clearing the bar at 6' 2", breaking the previous record of 6' 1" which had stood for 33 years.

The first order of business for The 1982 Dial board upon returning to The Hill was the replacement of Editor-in-cognito Matt Davis. Wary of trying to complete the largest Sixth Form section in Dial history all by himself, Senior Editor Kevin O'Shaughnessy promoted the industrious Drew Schuler to the newly created position of Associate Editor. It was then Section Editor Sang Lee's job to sweat out the first faculty deadline, supposedly due right smack in the middle of soccer season, only to find out the day after Bill and Erma mailed those first 32 pages for us that they weren't due for another three weeks. But at least this early action earned us much praise from Mike and Barb Gilroy, The Dial's defense against "The Plant."

As the trash cans began overflowing, the Managing Editor Stan Weiss managed to find more excuses to bag his responsibilities as Janitor-in-Chief. Occasionally Executive Editor John Millikin snuck behind enemy lines during the Great Little Italy Boycott to keep up morale and keep down hunger in the Dial room until Super Pizza's $3.00 January Buy 10, Get 1 Free Sale put J.B.'s four-wheel drive 'Baru to work during the blizzard season.

Thanks to the hard work of Phil Pittman and his staff of "finalizers," consisting of Will Moore, David French, and "little brother" David Schuler, the Sixth Form pages were nearly all finished on the Jap Day Deadline. Almost immediately after Christmas vacation, all attention was focused on 80 pages of organizations, sports, halls, and still more seniors. The Photo Department rushed to take and retake hundreds of "piks" to fill those 80 pages by January 25. While the bulk of the camera and darkroom duty was done by Nicotine Nels Wangenstein, Greg Rebar, Mike Barbee, Mr. Long, or Spanky the Spaz, many thanks are also due photographers J. Barrett, J. Berman, N. Bentley, B. Chan, S. Coverly, J. Millar, A. Miller, and C. Outzen, as well as establishments Davor, Arrow, and T&F for their cooperation in filling our darkroom files and shelves.

All Hill broke loose to help The Dial on its last deadline. So much had to be done that, on the last "all-nighter" of the season, The Dial annexed the Reading Department offices for more working space. The labyrinth chambers of the classroom building buzzed with "speedy" workers. The Orient Express Typing Service, consisting of Dennis Lin, David Rhee, and Kevin Modarress's typewriter, hammered away at the keys throughout the night in the News room. Marshall Welch did most of the Sports Editor's work while Wes Schantz slept in preparation for another wrestling match.

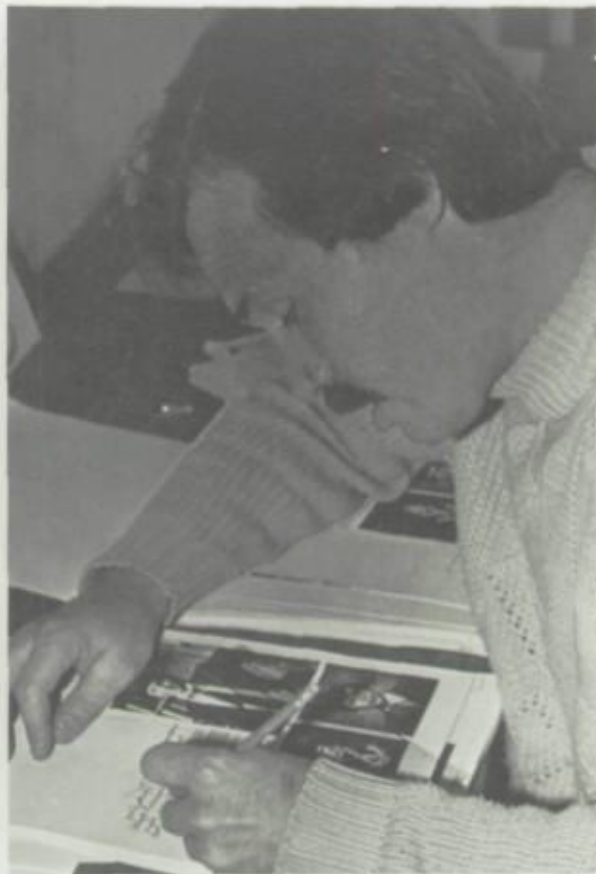

This "nightlife" attracted many visions, some involuntary, such as Max Sproul, President Rexer, and Mr. Gardner, all of whom provided us with lots of nitty gritty about this year's dedicatee even though it was 2

A.M. By 4:00 AM February 19, opening copy writer Pinckney "The Dreamer" Benedict and artist John "The Procrastinator" Malcolm provided the surrealistic theme of this year's Dial. Only 55 hours earlier, the Headmaster was asked by a forgetful editor-in-chief to write the letter to the Sixth Form. The Dial thanks Mr. Watson for finding time in his busy schedule not only to write it on such short notice, but also for providing the info. on Mr. Moffatt.

Kudos to George Kirjanov and those whom he "drafted" to write some articles (A. Baitel, B. Bannigan, K. Burget, P. Hammarskjold, R. Lesemann, B. Pierce, K. Smith, and M. Zugari) for providing some of the best, and most, writing The Dial has seen in years. It was George's sick sense of humor just as much as the coffee, tea, cola, and munchies of the Dial "kitchen" or the Dial Defamation Dartboard and Destruction Departments which kept us going through all the late nights and dart fights. Finally with talk of a Dial Bash at Business Editor Bruce "I Quit" Wickersham's house drifting through the night air, like the Dial Executive Goon Squad on a Secrecy Security mission, The 1982 Dial board would like to leave its last thanks to Mr. Mercer for granting so many badly needed athletic reprieves, Mr. Powell for putting up with the liberalities of The Dial table, and Mr. "J.B." Long for all his time, effort, and friendship.
